Thank you for allowing me into your lesson today.

It was great to see the pupils engaged in the learning about the nervous system. You had found an interesting way of delivering some basic information to the pupils to maintain their interest.

I liked the Do it Now you had used with the pupils as it had a strong literacy element to it.

However, there was a lack of marking in their exercise books. You need to ensure you are following the marking policy and providing pupils with feedback in the form of medals and missions, as well as giving them an opportunity to act on these through green penning.
